Read the text. Then complete the task.

The new entertainment city opened in our town last month, and thirteen-year-old Warda could not wait to go. She saved her pocket money for three weeks to buy a ticket. On Friday morning, her father drove her and her two brothers to the big blue gates. Inside, everything was bright and noisy. There were rides that spun in the air, a house of mirrors, and a small train that went around the whole park. Warda's favourite ride was the big wheel. From the top, she could see the sea and the mountains. Her brothers loved the bumper cars and rode them five times. At noon, the family ate sandwiches under a tree and watched a clown show. The clown made balloon animals for the children, and he gave Warda a red balloon dog. Before they went home, her father took a photo of the three children in front of the gates. That night, Warda put the photo and her balloon dog next to her bed. 'This was the best Friday of my life,' she thought, and she fell asleep with a smile on her face.
